New Book! "You Remind Me of David": The Prophet David Prefigured the Messiah, the Honorable Louis Farrakhan, Part One

Karriem Allah releases book that describes how the Biblical "David"—as a prophet and as another title for the Messiah—prefigured the Honorable Louis Farrakhan, the Messiah. This book provides a thorough exegesis about how the Messianic Prophecies regarding the Davidic Covenant were not fulfilled thousands of years ago, but are being fulfilled at this time.

Newark, Delaware, September 12, 2017: The Honorable Elijah Muhammad's statement to the Honorable Louis Farrakhan, "You remind me of David," in 1957 showed that—even at that time—He knew of the Honorable Louis Farrakhan's destiny in the fulfillment of the Messianic Prophecies. This book correlates the Honorable Elijah Muhammad's "statement" with the Quranic and Biblical "stories of David" to show how they relate to the life and work of the Honorable Louis Farrakhan.

For many years, historians have questioned whether David is an historical figure, or if the story of David is mere legend or fable. To date, Biblical historians have failed to discover historical and archaeological proof that supports the Biblical story of David described in the Old Testament. Notwithstanding, many religious scholars agree that the Messiah arises from the "seed" of David, as prophesied throughout the Bible. This involves much.

This book describes how "David" is another title for the "Messiah;" and thereby, reveals how the actions and events described in the story of David are prophetic, and not historical. When this truth is considered, the verses of the Messianic Prophecies that mention "David" make greater sense. Understanding that "David" is also a title brings clarity to the Biblical story of David.

This book shows that the relevance of the Quranic and Biblical "stories of David" is in the fulfillment of the Messianic Prophecies—specifically, as witnessed in the presence of the Messiah, the Honorable Louis Farrakhan, among the real Chosen People of God, the Black People of the Western Hemisphere.

It is important for you to arm yourself with this essential knowledge!
